The Department of French launched its undergraduate programme in 2004 and offered the master programme of French Language and Literature in 2008. Our department has a devoted team of eight full-time teachers, including two associate professors and one foreign teacher. Notably, 87% of these teachers hold a Ph.D., and the same number of faculty members have international exchange experiences. Our faculty is committed to the translation and research of Chinese classics. In recent years, they have secured two national social science awards, published numerous high-level papers, and contributed several professional publications and translations. These achievements greatly enrich our French curriculum and develop the international communication skills of our students.

We have established high-quality international exchange and cooperation programs with a number of renowned universities in France and Canada. Notably, our mutual student exchange program with Université Lyon 2, in place for over a decade, is unique within Sichuan Province.

In 2022, the Programme was enlisted in the First-class Undergraduate Programmes of Sichuan Province." In response to national and societal needs, we constantly optimize our talent cultivation plan, striving to nurture forward-thinking, highly skilled, and adaptable talents in the field of French studies.
